

Craig L. Miller

Craig L. Miller began private practice in Clallam County in 1983 emphasizing the representation of Clallam County public entities, as well as land-use and real estate.

Mr. Miller graduated from Port Angeles High School in 1966. He attended Stanford University as a National Merit Scholar, graduating in 1970. He graduated from the University of Washington Law School in 1973. He practiced personal injury defense law in Seattle, returning to Port Angeles in 1977. He was Chief Civil Deputy Prosecuting Attorney for Clallam County. He was then Port Angeles City Attorney from 1979 to 1983.

Mr. Miller has extensive Superior Court experience in high profile cases, representing:

- The City and County regarding the Northern Tier proposal to use Port Angeles Harbor as an oilport.

The City and the Clallam County PUD in litigation surrounding the Washington Public Power Supply System.
- local entities in recovering public funds misappropriated by ESM Government Securities.
- Olympic Memorial Hospital regarding events concerning the tragic death of a child at the hospital.
- Clallam Transit in the Gateway redevelopment project.

Mr. Miller served on the Port Angeles School Board from 1989 to 1993, and was a founding member of N'orwester Rotary.

Mr. Miller will bring to the bench a temperament of fairness, and civility, and will apply the skill created by his education and many years of practice to provide correct, fair and impartial rulings. He will serve the people of Clallam County with distinction.
